

Nahan Printing Announces Expansion; Acquires Second Facility to Support Continued Growth

Second campus will enable the award-winning commercial printer to expand equipment and capabilities

St. Cloud, Minn. – November 16, 2006 – Nahan Printing, Inc., a leading commercial printer and complete direct mail business based in St. Cloud, announced today it will be expanding its business by adding a second facility to accommodate the company's continued growth. The newly acquired 120,000 square foot facility is located on 20 acres in Sauk Rapids, Minn. This site will become home to Nahan's direct mail operation, while Nahan's commercial printing operation will remain at the company's headquarters in St. Cloud, Minn.

"We are pleased with the continued growth we've experienced through the years and we're excited about our future," stated Mike Nahan, President and CEO of Nahan Printing. "By increasing our physical size, we can add new equipment that supports our growth model and offer new capabilities to help our customers be successful."

Nahan added that having a second facility will provide the space and flexibility the company needs now and in the future. The company plans to migrate its direct mail operation to the Sauk Rapids facility in approximately March 2007. At that time, Nahan Printing will add new equipment to its printing operation at the 300,000 square foot facility in St. Cloud.

"Our business is built on a rigorous commitment to customers and quality," added Nahan, "and our employees live and breathe this commitment every day. Together, we strive to provide the highest quality product and service in the industry. That's a winning combination for employees, customers, and the local communities."

Nahan Printing's commitment to excellence is evident in the numerous national and international awards it has won for print quality, creativity, and complexity, including the recent honor of being named Sappi's International Printer of the year in the magazine category. Founded in 1962, Nahan Printing has grown into a premier, commercial printer with national and international customers, including a number of Fortune 500 companies and well-known brands.
